

WHO WE ARE

The International Cemetery, Cremation and Funeral Association (ICCFA) is the only international trade association representing all segments of the cemetery, funeral service, cremation and memorialization profession. The association has over 10,000 members in the cemetery, funeral home, crematory profession, suppliers, and related businesses worldwide.

OUR HISTORY

Founded in 1887 as the Association of American Cemetery Superintendents, the organization was created by a group of 18 cemeteries whose goal was to improve the appearance and operations of their properties. Throughout its first century of operation, the association grew its mission and underwent several name changes, but it remained a national cemetery-only organization. In 1996, the association became the International Cemetery and Funeral Association, expanding its membership to include funeral homes and other related businesses and extending its reach beyond U.S. borders. In 2007, "Cremation" was added to the name to reflect the operations and goals of its membership more accurately.

OUR MISSION

At the ICCFA, we aim to foster a community of professionals committed to providing compassionate and meaningful end-of-life services. We strive to advance professional standards, advocate for legislative and regulatory policies that support our members and promote education and innovation within the deathcare profession.
